FINE STOCK IN THE WEST.

There is on our table a catalogue received by the JOURNAL giving a list of the stock and the pedigree of each animal that will be offered to the public at a sale of Herefords at Kansas City stock yards April 25 to 26, 1900. In the catalogue there are plates giving an outline of some of the most noted Herefords in the United States. Among them is an excellent representation of Armour Rose, purchased by John Sparks of Washoe county at a breeders' sale late in the fall of last year for $2,500, which is the highest price that has been paid for a female Hereford. The animal has a fine appearance and may be worth all the money there is in the price paid.

When a review of Mr. Sparks' herd was made by the writer in January of this year, there were a number of animals in it that gave to the eye as fine an outline as did Armour Rose. When we have said there were as good examples in Mr. Sparks' herd as the heifer Armour Rose, it is not the intention to cause an impression that Armour Rose is less valuable than the price paid indicates, as she is a splendid example of a highly developed thoroughbred Hereford; but the object is upon what we deem a just comparison to give an idea of the superior development in outline there is in Herefords owned by Mr. Sparks.

While it is necessary that first class care be given to these animals to secure the perfect outline there is to them, the owner is not entitled to all the credit for the excellence of the make-up there is to the many heads there are in the herd. A Nevada climate and Nevada alfalfa have quite as much to do with the first class development there is to the animals as the care of the owner.

The sale at Kansas City of Herefords next month is one of the many assurances that have been and continue to be given of a growing industry for the production in the great west of the highest class of thoroughbred Herefords and other classes of fine bovines. In the variety of climate and soil there is in the mountain west that contribute largely to development, there is no climate or soil in the range of mountain country that is equal to the climate and soil of the great basin, and more particularly the western portion.

It may seem to those who occupy other parts of the basin that we are claiming more for the west than the facts will support, but we do not think there is more claimed than the west can sustain by facts. The soils in many parts of the basin are equal to, if they do not surpass, the soils at the base and upon the eastern slopes of the Sierras, but as distance is removed to the interior the climate becomes more severe in winter than it is in the west, owing to coast influence, while in summer the climate in the interior does not surpass the climate in the west for stock growing purposes.

In the winter season the climate at the west is modified by coast influences to a degree that gives sufficient cold to make the animal body active under the pressure without making it necessary to take on a defensive condition to cold. Which relation to climate or to cold as the interior is removed by distance from the coast becomes more active and there is a corresponding waste of carbon to meet increased climatic demands. These demands arrest development in winter in the interior while in the west it is going on under a favorable food supply at a ratio that will equal the development in summer.

The cause mentioned applies to the basin in winter but at no other time. When we pass from the basin to other parts of the mountain country we find almost the same climatic conditions there are in the more interior portions of the basin, the climate beyond the basin being more or less affected by altitude. As we pass eastward from the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains and enter the Mississippi valley proper the flies make an appearance and cause a large waste of flesh through continual effort in the day time to meet the war there is going on between the flies and the animal, which is a hindering cause to favorable growth. There is another cause east of the Rockies that may be taken into consideration, which is food properties in the grasses of the valley. As we go eastward from the mountains to the Missouri river there is a gradual lessening of food percentage in the grasses and herbage, which is accounted for in the absence of mineral properties in the valley soils that largely exist in mountain soils, which make up the strong food properties there are in vegetable growths in the mountains which stock feed upon.

There is not a cause that we are aware of that is not favorable to the growth of farm and stock products in the basin, but for reasons given we are persuaded there are more favorable conditions that give superior advantages to the west than are given to the more easterly and central parts of the basin and these advantages flow from the more mild climate there is at the west. While our fine stock growers in the west are doing superior work in producing fine stock it is best perhaps they should know that the people are informed upon some of the causes that are favorable to their work and which will in the future be taken advantage of by others who admire fine stock.

A Night of Terror.

"A awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. After three small doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her."

Action on the Porto Rican Tariff Bill.

Special to the JOURNAL.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The Senate today agreed to vote on the Porto Rican Government and Tariff bill Tuesday afternoon next.

Senator Davis, Republican, delivered a remarkable speech, saying the country was in arms against the proposed tariff bill, and stating that it was time for the Republican leaders to get their ears to the ground and hear the dangerous rumblings of the people. He said it was time to abandon clap-trap tariff dictated by trusts and get back into the plain path of duty and give Porto Rico a free market for its products.

Today he left the hospital and resumed the management of his bookstore apparently well but with the bullet still in his brain.

THE COMING FIELD DAY.

Interest Increases as the Time Draws Near.

At the time of the field day events between Stanford and the Nevada University draws near, interest increases and the boys are putting in full time training.

Coach Brunston is a man who is slow to give an opinion on any subject, but on athletics he is very reticent. But with it all, the boys themselves say the track team was never in better condition than at present, and if all signs do not fail Nevada will surely win from the California youngsters on April 7th.

Ward is surprising everyone by his excellent work. He has been training but a few days and has already exceeded the mark set last year.

Moorman and McCarran are training diligently for the 100 yard event, and have shown excellent form.

Ward in the hurdle and Jameson in the mile run are developing wonderful speed, and are improving every day.

Reports received from Stanford say the California boys are working hard and will come to Reno with a determination to "do or die," so an interesting exhibition is promised.

SMALLPOX IS RAGING IN OGDEN, UTAH.

The Elko Independent contains the following:

There is a well developed case of smallpox at Terrace. The patient is an employe of the railroad eating house, and has been acting in the capacity of a roustabout. He was taken sick in the hotel, but was removed yesterday and placed in quarantine.

We learned to-day from one of the trainmen that there were twenty-five cases of smallpox in Ogden last week, three of which proved fatal.

REPUBLICAN CENTRAL COMMITTEE MEETS.

The Republican County Central Committee met last night, pursuant to a call issued a week ago by Chairman Maxson, and it was decided to hold a primary election on April 7th to elect delegates to the Republican State convention which will be held in Carson April 19th, where six delegates will be elected to the Republican national convention at Philadelphia.

Outlook in Long Valley.

F. M. Romand, a prominent Long Valley man, was in town last evening registered at the Palace. Mr. Romand reports that cattle in his country were never in better condition and that the prospects for water and feed during the summer were better by far than last year. There is a heavy fall of snow in the Last Chance mountains, which insures a supply of water until late in the fall.

Mr. Romand will leave for San Francisco this morning, and before returning home will make an extended tour through California.

Boer and Briton.

Rev. S. Unsworth will deliver the address at the University general assembly this morning. Mr. Unsworth will speak on the all absorbing topic "Boer and Briton," and as this is the second of a series of lectures he will deliver on this question a large number of town people are expected to be present. Everyone is invited.

Professor Bray has made arrangements to have Mr. Unsworth deliver a lecture on the same subject on April 6. The proceeds will be turned over to the high school apparatus fund.

The County's Guest.

Shovel-tooth Annie was yesterday sentenced to ninety days in the county bastille, as a result of being found guilty of vagrancy Tuesday.

This will give the unfortunate woman time to repent of her ways, if she ever intends to. However, there is not much hope of saving Annie, for she has fallen to the lowest level of human degradation. It is too bad no suitable place has been provided for the detention of women of this class, for in many cases there is some chance to reform them.

Have Broadened Out.

The popular saloon men, Rutledge & Pringle, have purchased the well known Bank Exchange saloon and are completely renovating the place with a view of making it a high class and popular resort. These gentlemen thoroughly understand their business and are certainly deserving of a liberal patronage from the public.

Small Hope for Silver State.

The condition of Silver State has grown so serious that Dan O'Keefe has found it necessary to telegraph for a veterinary surgeon who will arrive from San Francisco to-day. No expense has been spared to save the race mare's life. The expense of the veterinary surgeon alone will amount to $180.

Sad if True.

Geo. Obeck, the popular clerk at the Riverside, was indisposed yesterday and for a time it was thought it would be necessary to summon a physician. George has but recently recovered from a severe attack of the grippe and it is thought that the old ailment is about to take him down again. However, it is hoped by his many friends that he will not be so unfortunate.

Meeting With Success.

There were several conversions at the Baptist revival last evening. Much enthusiasm has been aroused among the members by Mr. Boyd and it is thought there will be many more converts before the meetings close in Reno. Mr. Boyd is a very interesting talker and, what is more, he is earnest. Meetings continue afternoon and evenings.

Louis Bavier, who has been busy expediting the books of the various county officers during the last few days, has intimated that his labors are almost completed and that he will hand the result of his investigations to the grand jury within a short time.

Various rumors are afloat as to what conclusions Mr. Bavier has reached. However, the public is still in the dark as to how the county affairs stand.

Is Improving.

B. F. Browney, of Floriston, where he is employed as a bookkeeper for the Construction Company, had a delicate operation performed in Reno last Saturday, that promised to be attended with considerable danger.

Last evening Drs. Phillips, who have the patients in charge, reported that he was getting along nicely and would soon be able to resume his duties at Floriston.

CLAIMS FOR RELOCATION.

Effect of the Recent Ruling of the United States Land Office.

Commenting on the recent ruling promulgated from the land office at Washington, the Denver Mining Reporter says:

It is now stated by authority that the recent requisition of the Federal land office for a list of all applications for mining patents made prior to Jan. 1, 1899, on which the claims have not been regularly prosecuted is for the purpose of cancellation. This action of the Department will effect a radical change in the nature of property holding throughout all the mining regions of the country. Its purpose is to nullify the ownership of such claims and clear the records of their cumbersome accumulation of dead matter. Many thousands of mining claims will thus revert to the Government, subject to relocation. The effect of the action will, no doubt, be damaging to the interests of many people, but beyond the exceptional instances of individual loss, it will work a beneficial change to every established mining camp in the country.

One of the greatest obstacles to the progress of the best mining districts in Colorado and elsewhere, has been the domination of the "patent applied for" locator of one or many claims, who, by bulldozing and all manner of cunning connivance, has been able to withstand the rights of others upon his domain of forbidden ground. Now, the new locator will no longer have reason to fear that after he has developed his claim into the prospect of a paying mine, he will be frightened away or forced into litigation by unexpected proof of prior rights in the form of a pending application for patent. Such documents in the future will be proof that the quondam owner is the owner of no right upon the ground.

Its purpose is to nullify the ownership of such claims and clear the records of their cumbersome accumulation of dead matter. Many thousands of mining claims will thus revert to the Government, subject to relocation. The effect of the action will, no doubt, be damaging to the interests of many people, but beyond the exceptional instances of individual loss, it will work a beneficial change to every established mining camp in the country.

One of the greatest obstacles to the progress of the best mining districts in Colorado and elsewhere, has been the domination of the "patent applied for" locator of one or many claims, who, by bulldozing and all manner of cunning connivance, has been able to withstand the rights of others upon his domain of forbidden ground. Now, the new locator will no longer have reason to fear that after he has developed his claim into the prospect of a paying mine, he will be frightened away or forced into litigation by unexpected proof of prior rights in the form of a pending application for patent. Such documents in the future will be proof that the quondam owner is the owner of no right upon the ground.

CLAIMS FOR RELOCATION.

Effect of the Recent Ruling of the United States Land Office.

Commenting on the recent ruling promulgated from the land office at Washington, the Denver Mining Reporter says:

It is now stated by authority that the recent requisition of the Federal land office for a list of all applications for mining patents made prior to Jan. 1, 1899, on which the claims have not been regularly prosecuted is for the purpose of cancellation. This action of the Department will effect a radical change in the nature of property holding throughout all the mining regions of the country. Its purpose is to nullify the ownership of such claims and clear the records of their cumbersome accumulation of dead matter. Many thousands of mining claims will thus revert to the Government, subject to relocation. The effect of the action will, no doubt, be damaging to the interests of many people, but beyond the exceptional instances of individual loss, it will work a beneficial change to every established mining camp in the country.
